Chapter 1 by Allie

It was a normal day for the Doctor. He was at a UNIT scene, when he met Sherlock Holmes in modern day England. "Hey! Watch where you're going!" the Doctor yells at Sherlock as Sherlock runs into him, not knowing who he is. The Doctor was with UNIT investigating a very unusual, non-human crime. Sherlock has no reason to be there, but he just showed up with John.

"Excuse me, who do you think you are?" Sherlock asked.

"I'm the Doctor. Who are you. You are very obviously not with UNIT," The Doctor said curiously.

"He's my younger brother, Doctor. His name is Sherlock and you're right. He's not supposed to be here," Mycroft answered.

"A doctor, what are you a doctor of?" Sherlock asked.

"Well, everything in all of time and space. Everything that has happened, is happening, and everything that will happen," The Doctor replied. All of a sudden Sherlock faints. Sherlock wakes up an hour later.

"What happened?" Sherlock asks rubbing his head.

"You fainted," John replied.

"No, Doctor, I fainted," Sherlock says.

"You met some guy called the Doctor. He was a bit weird. He said 'I'm the Doctor' and 'Everything that has happened, is happening, and everything that will happen'." Sherlock walks in. "How did you get in here? The door was locked!"

"Sonic screwdriver. Who's Sherlock?"

"What's a sonic screwdriver?" Sherlock asks confused.

"Not important, but what is important is that Sherlock Holmes is a fictional character based on my lizard friend Vastra," The Doctor says.

"Lizard Friend?" Sherlock asked confused.

"Not important either," The Doctor said pacing.

"Doctor, we forgot to go to the UNIT base last week." Clara said thinking.

"We can go back there in five minutes, but what day was it we were supposed to be there?" The Doctor asked.

"What do you mean what day?" Sherlock asked confused.

"He is funny. Isn't he supposed to be super smart?" Clara asked the Doctor.

"Yeah, he is supposed to be super smart, but to answer his question in two words, time travel." The Doctor said starting to walk out of the flat when Sherlock grabbed his arm.

"Time travel? Sonic screwdriver? Explain this to me." Sherlock said angrily.

"Can we show him?" Clara said in a mock beg.

"Sure, why not. Do you want to see the TARDIS?" The Doctor asked Sherlock.

"The what?" Sherlock asked.

"Just follow us," Clara said walking out the door with the Doctor.

"Why are you walking towards that police box?" Sherlock asked.

"You'll see." The Doctor said opening the door, walking in, and started to flip switches.

"Why did he go in that box?" Sherlock said right before walking in. As soon as he saw the inside of the TARDIS he had an amazed look on his face.

"So, you travel through all of time and space... in this machine?" Sherlock inquired, walking slowly through the console room, trying to deduce anything from this place.

"Yep." The Doctor answered, as if he had answered that same question hundreds of times (which he had).

Sherlock stopped, and looked up to the Doctor. "Why should I believe you?"

"Is what you're seeing here not real enough?" The Doctor said, leaning on the console and licking his thumb to clean off a bit.

The Doctor took a few steps closer to Sherlock; he suddenly looked much more serious. Everything about this man confused Sherlock, and although it happened rarely, Sherlock did not like being clueless.

The Doctor began talking in a much more serious tone. "Now, Sherlock Holmes is a fictional character, so who are you?"

"As I believe I have already mentioned, I am Sherlock Holmes." He said, before looking The Doctor over again. "You likely wouldn't tell me your real name, no matter how many times I ask, so I suggest we skip such formalities."

"You really believe you are Sherlock Holmes, don't you?" It was now brought to the detective's attention that The Doctor was attempting to flash his 'sonic screwdriver' at him in a discreet manner.

It wasn't very discreet.
